

MRS. HALEY CELEBRATES 90TH YEAR

MARLEY FARM LIFE PROGRAM BEGINS SEASON FEBRUARY 4

ABOUT THIS — AND — ABOUT THAT

By OLIVER GEDEIST

YOUNG AMERICA.—There is much hope for America in a fact about which I have just read. It was my intention to write about an entirely different thing, but while train riding I read an article that made me happy. I hope it will give you enough hope to make you happy, too. Amid all the disquieting occurrences in our local, national, and world life there are many encouraging things. But Young America as represented by 4-H clubs gives hope for many good things.

THEY'RE GOOD.—These youngsters of the 4-H clubs of America are good. Maybe you know all about it. Did you know that there are 1,700,000 (one million and seven hundred thousand) members of the 4-H? I suppose you do, or many of you. And I hope you know of the magnitude of their work, their magnificent work. They're truly "grass roots." And that's something. They're not likely to go gallivanting after false economic gods, thinking that merely by saying "Abakadabra" the universe can be acquired while lying in idleness and sipping mint juleps.

CORONET TELLS.—William F. McDermott, a good writer (I believe I should have read more of his writing), who knows the value of the 4-H work, told about the 4-H's in the December issue of Coronet, a sparkling little magazine that deserves an even larger circulation than it has. Mr. McDermott started out by telling of a little Nebraska girl, like a great many in our neighborhood, who has done very fine work. In pigtales when she started her 4-H club and now 17 years' old, the Nebraska miss, Maurine Steyer, who was "achievement champion" through 1941, since then has canned thousands of jars for her family, raised and sold beef cattle, cultivated big gardens and sold produce—and a lot of other things. At 17, she has earned more than $11,000, including $206 in cash prizes and $450 in scholarships.

OTHERS.—There are others, many, others like her, both boys and girls. And there are nearly a million and three quarters of them. Mr. McDermott tells about a great many of them. But we have them in our communities. Most of them have not earned great sums of money, but they have done what all the others have done—proved to themselves that by their efforts they can achieve success and add to the moral and spiritual, as well as financial value of their communities, states, nation, and world.

GOOD FEELING.—You know, when I read that article by Mr. McDermott in Coronet, it made me feel good. I said to myself, "As long as we have so many youngsters doing such fine work and learning of basic values, communism and other mean-souled movements will have a hard time getting a hold of our souls, at least among the grass-roots."

YOU SHARE IT.—You'll share the feeling, too. I know you will. For some of these fundamentals of life are near you, may belong to your family. You should revel in their accomplishments. For one thing, it is proof to the Shallowites (think I'll copyright that word) that they are merely empty bags of nothing, and the bags are very thin and worn from much useless use. Of course, the Shallowites never, never, never will understand the fundamental principles of life upon which these 4-H boys and girls are building. Shallowites like the "hot spots" and the giddiness of nothing. They'll die that way, and the world will not miss them.

GIVE 'EM A HAND.—So, let's give to the hundreds and hundreds of thousands of future American's backbone a big, big hand. They are doing a wonderful job, deserve the praises that their efforts will bring, and, more important, in my mind, they will reap the harvest of happiness that starts nowhere as successfully as it does on the American farm.

Mokena R. N. Officer Installation Set

Installation of new officers for Mokena Royal Neighbors is planned at the next meeting, it has been announced.

The meeting is set for Wednesday, February 4, at the home of Mrs. Maude Larson, Mokena.

The first meeting of the 1948 Marley Farm Life program will be held Wednesday night, February 4, at 8 o'clock in the Marley church. This is the fourth season for this educational program, which is sponsored by the Marley community church and the agricultural department of the Joliet township high school. The program, which has gained much popularity, is under the leadership of President Russel H. Lauffer and Max H. Kuster, agricultural teacher at the Joliet high school.

There will be eight weekly meetings this year, on Wednesday nights, during February and March. Classes will be held for men and women and educational movies will be shown to the children and young people. The program will be highlighted by two forums with outside speakers. Potluck suppers will be served on forum nights and coffee and doughnuts will be served on class nights.

The topic for discussion in the men's class on February 4 will be "Insurance—Life, Sickness, Accident, Livestock, and Farm Liability." Max Kuster will lead the meeting. "Sewing Hints and How to Use Attachments" will be the subject in the women's class.

The meetings are open to the public.

NEW BOOKS IN LIBRARY

The Mokena Book club has announced two new books, both "Book of the Month" selections, now on the shelves of the library. Brief reviews are presented here:

The Tamarack Tree by Howard Breslin: The Tamarack tree cast its long shadow on the strangest drama of love and violence that ever swept a small New England village. This is a lusty and powerful historical novel of the days in 1840 when a president was elected with hard cider, and a rally meant love, excitement, even murder—and only incidentally politics.

Red Plush, by Guy McCrone: Red Plush is a picture of Victorian Scottish family life set against the background of Glasgow and glamorous Vienna. It is the story of the Moorhouses. Affectionate, ambitious, human, and unpredictable, these people have been created lovingly and left to behave according to their natures.

Orland Home Bureau News

The regular monthly meeting of the Orland Home Bureau unit met Friday evening, January 16, in the home of Mrs. Raymond Wesley, with nine members present. We also had Mrs. Wesley's mother as guest.

Our chairman Helen Lembke, announced that the annual meeting will be held February 20 at the Edgewater Beach hotel in the Grand ballroom. Chicken and fish dinner will be served. Reservations to be in the Home Bureau office at Des Plaines by February 16. Guests are also welcomed. Anyone wishing to go should get in touch with our chairman by February 10.

The major project, selection and cooking of meat cuts, was given by Anna Lembke. She made a meat loaf prepared by dry heat, and later served it with hot rolls and pickles. Our next meeting will be held February 27, 8 p. m., in the home of Mrs. Foster Myrick. The major project will be selection and cooking of meat cuts, part two, local leaders Mildred Anderson and Emma Bernard. Frances Lozaw and Vivian Maue will serve. Meeting adjourned, Anna and Helen Lembke served refreshments. —Emma Bernard, publicity chairman.

HE COULDN'T ADVERTISE THIS WEEK

One of The Semmler Newspapers advertisers is not advertising this week. He has nothing to sell. Not a thing, he said, in stopping his advertisement.

There is a story back of it, of course. The story might be summed up in this: "The Power of Advertising."

Last summer Martin Kalden opened a Kaiser-Fraser automobile agency in the village of Mokena. He immediately began using The Semmler Newspapers. There were times when he had no cars to sell, and then his advertisements were made smaller and between times stopped.

But this story deals with last week. For some time Mr. Kalden simply had no cars to sell. Then the factory put on some extra speed and all at once he had a floor full of cars. What to do?

He put an advertisement in last week's Semmler Newspapers, Thursday night he had no more cars to sell. He thinks advertising pays—and that's right—good advertising properly done always pays. He'll be back soon.

Rodeghero Baby Contest Winner

Mr. and Mrs. William Rodeghero of Mokena were notified Monday that their son Dean, six months old, won a baby contest sponsored by the Continental Photographers of Chicago. He won out of a large number of baby pictures on the points of "cutest expression and poise."

His parents were given a large oil painting of the baby.

Annual Meeting

Secretary Charles G. Heusner has issued official notice of the annual meeting of the Green Garden Farmers' Fire Insurance company, to be held February 25 at the town hall, Green Garden township.

The 31st of last month, December, has been set as the date of record for determining members entitled to vote at the annual meeting.

It is understood that the company, with a wide coverage, has in effect at the present time approximately $23,000,000 in policies.

NURSERY FOR MARLEY CHURCH IS PLANNED

Mrs. Homer Sabin of Marley is starting a nursery to be in session every Sunday morning, starting February 1, in the parsonage of the Marley community church, to care for all children up to age 7 years' old or under, while their parents are attending church.

Mrs. Sabin says children's furniture, chairs, toys, play pen, and similar articles are needed. These may be either gifts or loans.

Mrs. Sabin will be assisted by two other women.

Orland Lights Lose To Mokena, Heavies Then Turn Tables

Sunday, January 25, the Orland basketball teams traveled to Mokena to continue league play.

It was a close see-saw game, the Mokena Lightweights nosing out the Orland Lightweights 37 to 29.

The Heavyweight game turned out to be a high-scoring and thrilling shoe-string game, with Orland winning by a score of 103 to 60.

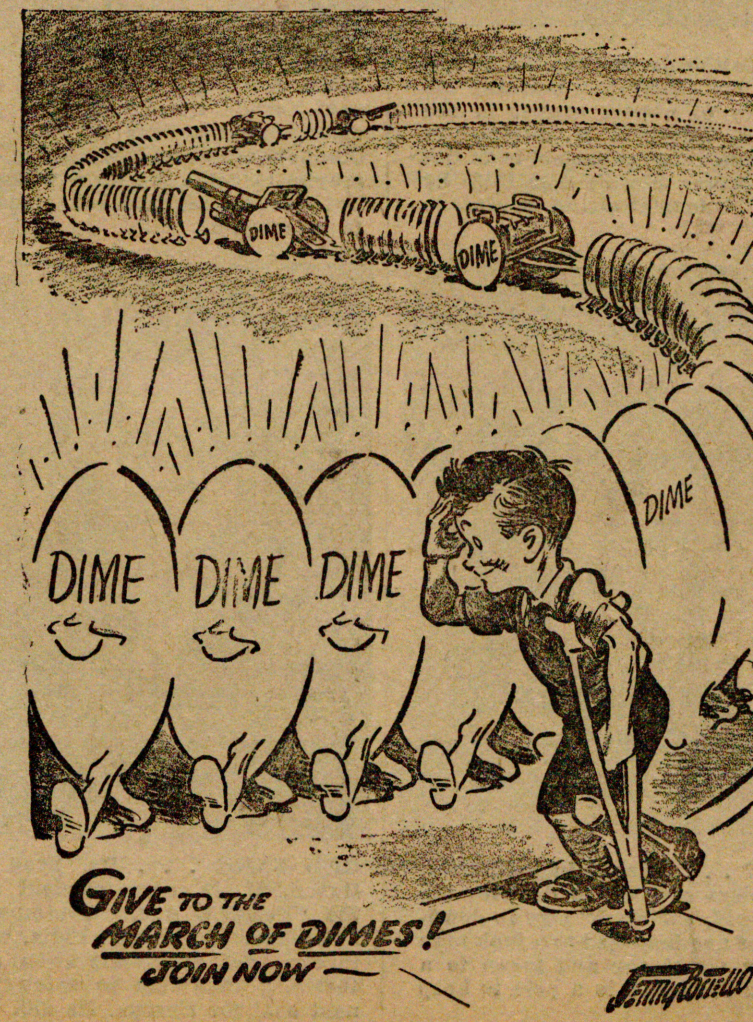

The next game for the Orland Park team will be Wednesday, February 4, against King Sporting Goods at the Orland Park gymnasium beginning at 7:15 p. m.

Artist to Speak At Palos Club Meet

At the next regular meeting of the Palos Heights Woman's club February 3, 8 p. m., at the Navajo Fields Country club, 123rd and Ridgeland avenue, the guest speaker will be Mrs. Hazel Caldwell Eppens on the subject of "Art as an Enrichment of Life." She illustrates her lectures with original water colors, oils, etchings, and finest reproductions of the world's greatest masterpieces.

An additional attraction will be a short musical by the Palos Singers and Palos Heights Woman's club chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Rose Grimes, accompanied by Mrs. James Myers.

John Adams was the last member of the Federalist party to be elected President of the United States.

MARLEY PIONEER GETS 'KICK' OUT OF LIVING, LOVES FLOWERS

Visitors Surprise Frank Sayers on 43d Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sayre were pleasantly surprised Sunday evening, January 25, when the following guests came to celebrate their 43rd wedding anniversary. The Rev. and Mrs. Henry Rempel, Dr. and Mrs. Rooth, Mrs. Hoi-comb, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cooper and daughter, Carol, Mrs. Catherine Brandau, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cooper, Miss Iva Hansen, and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Newton. Each guest brought a covered dish and a supper was served.

Adam A. Oetter Dies in Andres

Adam R. Oetter, a retired Frankfort farmer, and a former resident of Joliet, died Wednesday night, January 21, at the home of his son, Richard, at Andres, at the age of 80 years. Mr. Oetter suffered a paralytic stroke the previous Friday. His wife, Anna, died in 1932, while they were living in Joliet. Several years ago he moved to Andres, where he made his home until his death.

Mr. Oetter is survived by four sons, Edward and Henry of Joliet, Fred of Elwood, Conrad of Frankfort, and Richard of Andres; three daughters, Mrs. Gertrude Jarchow of New Lenox, Mrs. Anna Subbert of Des Plaines, and Eshter of Joliet, and 10 grand children.

The body was taken to the home of the son Conrad, Thursday afternoon. The funeral was held there Saturday at 1:30 p. m. and at 2 p. m. at St. Peter's church. The Rev. Erich Bizer officiated.

Interment was in St. Peter's Lutheran cemetery, Joliet. Four grandsons acted as pall bearers—Kenneth, Donald, Melvin, and Eugene Oetter, and George Anderson, and Elmer Grohne.

NEW PASTOR AT MARLEY

The Rev. William Bingham, 27, a student at Chicago university, is the new pastor of the Marley Community church. He and Mrs. Bingham have moved into the parsonage. His pastorate began January 1.

Mokena Lights Lead Division

January 25 was a very good day for the Mokena Lightweights, as they beat Orland Park by a score of 39 to 29 and took first place in their division.

"Fritz" Guendling was high scorer for Mokena, with 14 points, and Harris scored 14 of Orland's 29 points. Our league-leading record is now 5-1.

The Heavyweight game was a different story, as Orland Park rolled up a record score and beat Mokena by 103 to 60! However, this same Orland Park team leads the league, having yet to lose a league contest. As a matter of fact, they appear to be better than last season, when they won the league title by a large margin. Their high scorers for the week end were Hewson and Greathouse, with 38 and 25 respectively. Consolation high scorers for Mokena were "Petey" Homerding, with 18 points, and "Don" Guendling, with 12 points.

We hope for a different story this Sunday, as we encounter Harvey in three games at our home gymnasium. The Girl's game, being the first game, will start at 1 o'clock and will then be followed by two boys games.

Lets see a big crowd out to cheer Mokena's three teams on.—By publicity committee.

P. T. A. CARD PARTY SET FOR SATURDAY

A card party sponsored by the Orland Park P. T. A. will be held Saturday evening, January 31, at 8 o'clock in the school library. Proceeds of this party will go to the school for the purchase of needed items. The P. T. A. sponsors a series of programs each school year in order to raise money for the different school projects.

PLAN P. T. A. AT DOCTOR SCHOOL

A meeting is to be held at the Doctor school, district 137, Tuesday evening, February 3, at 8 p. m., for the purpose of organizing a Parent-Teachers association. Mrs. Ed J. Wool, district director, is to be present at the meeting. All parents and interested citizens have been urged to attend this meeting and to participate in the discussion and organization.

Lived in Marley 84 Years; Active

(Note: A photograph of Mrs. Haley will be published here next week.—Editor.)
By Virginia Sass

To most persons, looking ahead, 90 years of age seems 'way up there, or 'way out there, and almost unattainable. But to Mrs. C. F. Haley of Marley the 90th birthday is just another anniversary, and the time that has passed has not been so long, after all.

Mrs. Haley celebrated her 90th birthday Tuesday of this week, and the attention she received was pleasing, of course, but just living and being interested in life was more important.

Mrs. Haley came to the Marley community with her father from Buffalo, N. Y., when she was six years old. She has watched this community grow from the time the village was laid out in 1880. She and her husband played important parts in the history of Marley. They were married in Marley May 3, 1882. Together they established a store and post office in the first building in Marley, which was built by the late Griffin and Edward Marshall in 1879. After the post office was established a name was necessary, and the name finally accepted by the postal officials was derived from the forepart of the name Marshall and the latter part of the name Haley. Thus the name "Marley," given to the post office, was gradually accepted as the name of the town.

In 1893, the Haleys built a new store and moved the original store building to Maple street. This building was converted into a nine-room residence, which is still occupied by Mrs. Haley and her daughter Agnes. On May 3, 1918, the store was burned to the ground. The Marley post office was transferred to the home until 1919, when Marley and community was served from the rural route out of Mokena.

Mrs. Haley receives her greatest enjoyment from her work in the Marley community church, of which she has been an active member since the time the new church was built in 1900. She has held a deep interest in its progress and she can recite bits of history from the time when it was known as the Hadley Baptist church. Mrs. Haley is oldest member of the Marley Missionary society. She was present at the first meeting when the society was organized on April 1, 1895.

She also has participated in Red Cross work, especially in wartimes when she knitted for servicemen.

Feeling the need for a community hall, Mrs. Haley and her daughter Miss Agnes recently gave a gift of land on which their store once stood, to the Marley church. It is their hope that the dream of such a community center will some day be made real. Mrs. Haley's greatest inspiration is seeing men, women, and children working together to produce something worth while. She believes that there is nothing finer than building a firm foundation of youth interest in a community.

To Mrs. Haley, marriage and the rearing of children is the greatest career for women. Her own children are Miss Agnes of Marley and Mrs. W. B. Storm of DeKalb. She has four grandchildren; Robert M. Storm and Mrs. Barbara Jolley of Corvallis, Ore., Mrs. Betty Seldan of Petosky, Mich., and Bruce Storm of Chicago. She is especially devoted to her great-grandchildren, Betsy Seiden of Petosky and Robert Haley Storm of Corvallis.

Beauty is never farther than the very fingertips of Mrs. Haley, whose love for flowers is evident from the profusion of plants in her home and garden. Come spring, she will be seen out in the garden preparing the soil and planting seeds. She is never idle, doing her own housework and keeping her hands busy with some crocheting or other fancy work. Known to everyone as "Aunt Libbie," her jovial witty manner is an inspiration to all. Her gracious hospitality is always extended to her many friends.

Last fall she experienced her first visit to a hospital, when she suffered an accident while washing clothes. Good spirits soon helped her recover from the injuries. Her long life may be attributed to keeping active and following the old proverb, "Early to bed, early to rise, makes one healthy, wealthy, and wise."

Palos Women Slate An All-Day Meeting

On Thursday, February 12, the Palos Park Woman's club will have an all-day meeting starting with a business session at 11 a. m. At noon convention reports will be heard, and at 12:30 members will have luncheon.

At 1:30 p. m. the department of public welfare will present a program which will feature Mrs. Mildred Othmer Peterson, who will discuss the topic, "Experiences in Collecting Foreign Jewelry." Mrs. John Zimmerman, foreign relations chairman, will introduce the guest speaker.

Hostesses for luncheon will be Mrs. Frank Itzel, chairman, Mrs. A. S. Fritschel, Mrs. Harry Crowley, Mrs. Grove Elmoe, and Mrs. A. J. Fischer.

Filled the Bill!

At the "We Have a Card for Every Occasion" counter of a large department store, the clerk asked a woman shopper if he could help her.

"I'm afraid you haven't anything that will do," she said. "I've looked all these cards over."

"Madam," said the clerk, "we have greeting cards for everything. What kind do you want?"

The woman hesitated, then leaned forward and said in a low voice, "My brother has just been sent to jail, and I want to send him a card expressing my regret."

The clerk thought a moment, then reached among the cards "For the Sick" and handed her one. It read: "Sorry to hear you're a shut-in. Hope you get out soon!"

CALLING ALL SOURDOUGHS . . . In California the volatile inhabitants of the state were all excited about the celebration marking the centennial of James Marshall's discovery of a gold nugget in the tailrace of Sutter's sawmill near Coloma. Here, L. W. Loomis, in charge of mining exhibits at the Coloma centennial, pans gold near site of Sutter's mill. NOW WHERE DID YOU COME FROM? . . . Steeped in perplexity, Patrolman Paul Nydes puzzles the problem of what to do with the horse which he found hitched to a "flats fixed, car wash" sign in downtown Pittsburgh. It later developed that the nag belonged to a junk man who had been hurt in a collision with a street car and taken to a hospital. A benevolent bystander had tied the horse to a pole to keep him out of harm's way.

JUST A GAG . . . Primo Carnera, former world's heavyweight champ, puts a little pressure on diminutive jockey Freddie Smith, maybe to get a tip on a winner. But Freddie escaped unharmed—to ride again.

SAYS STALIN ILL . . . Mario Pimentel Brandao, Brazilian ambassador to Moscow for 18 months before Brazil broke relations with Russia, says that Prime Minister Stalin is suffering from paralysis of his right side.

AND NO DEPENDENTS . . . Two-and-a-half-year-old Wendy Rey Stocking, one of Chicago's youngest models, tolls off the figures as she counts her earnings in preparation for paying the last installment of her 1947 income tax.

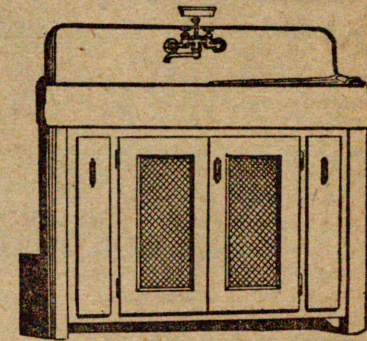

PLENTY SCARED . . . Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, White House physician accused of speculating in grain, told the senate food gambling committee that he got out of the wheat market because he was "plenty scared" by President Truman's scathing denunciation of grain speculators.

'IT'S LIKE THIS' . . . Chester Bowles, former OPA chief, dispatched to Europe to make a survey of conditions among children of war-torn countries, explains his mission to reporters in Paris.

THE FICTION CORNER

WILL OF THE WIND

By WILLIAM BRANDON

MRS. HACKETT found her in the bedroom crying. She stood in the doorway and said grimly: "I came in to borrow some sugar, Sylvie. The door was open so I just walked in. Now what on earth's wrong with you?"

Sylvia sat up and dried her eyes. Her starched gingham skirt was wrinkled and her black hair was tangled and disordered. A curling strand of it hung down beside her nose like an ink stain. A pin had come out of her imitation lace collar and it had fallen down to catch in the red buckle at her waist. She said shakily, "Hello, Mrs. Hackett. N-thing."

Mrs. Hackett drew down the corners of her mouth. "Nothing, my foot. It's because of Chip wanting to pull up stakes and go to Canton. Isn't it? Of course it is."

Sylvia slapped the lock of hair out of her eyes. "I won't be a boomer's wife!" she flared. "I won't!"

"Mm," Mrs. Hackett said sourly. "A boy's will is the wind's will. That's a poem. It's the truest thing in the world. Don't do no good to fight against it. Remember that and you'll have it easier."

"I won't be a boomer's—b-boomer's wife! I won't drag around to one mill after another all my life, and never have anything, no home, and no—no nothing! I won't!"

"Well, it's his job, if he wants to throw it away."

"It isn't! It's just as much mine as it is his! I don't believe in that old idea that a woman's just a—slave, to follow a man around at whatever he happens to want to do!"

"Oh, you don't," Mrs. Hackett said. "And just what can you do about it?"

Sylvia bowed her head and scrubbed unhappily at her cheeks with her handkerchief. "I don't know," she sobbed.

"Of course you don't. You're nothing but a child," Mrs. Hackett sniffed. "You'd be twenty years finding out what to do and by that time it's too late to do any good. Unless there's somebody around to tell you to begin with. Somebody who knows."

Sylvia was not impressed. "What could you tell me, Mrs. Hackett? What could anyone do? I've argued with him until I'm almost crazy but he—he doesn't even listen any more. He's got his mind set on moving on, to something different that won't be any different at all, and then he'll want to go again, and—"

"A boy's will is the wind's will," said Mrs. Hackett. "That's what the poem says. It's just as true of a man or an old man, for that matter. The older they get the truer it gets, I reckon. Only they kind of give up trying to do anything about it after so long a time." She pushed up her lower lip and looked down her nose at Sylvia. "Like Mr. Hackett."

Sylvia looked up, startled. "You mean Mr. Hackett used to—want to—"

"He was the hardest man to hold down in this town. He got tired of everything, that was his trouble. It's a sort of laziness, that's all it is. But he stuck here. He stuck, all right."

"Why?" Sylvia wailed. "What did you do?"

"Well," Mrs. Hackett said, "you can take it for what it's worth, Sylvie. It worked with Mr. Hackett, I know that."

"But what was it?"

"Whenever he worked himself up to a pitch about cutting loose and chasing away some place after something he thought was better, I simply gave him his way."

Sylvia looked disappointed and puzzled. "Oh."

"But," Mrs. Hackett said profoundly, "he didn't know it. I took him on a trip. Just a week or so. And I kept him on the jump every minute of it. I always liked little trips around, anyway. Well, by the time that man would get home again he'd be so tired of jumping around that he wouldn't have left for a pension. That," Mrs. Hackett said, "is something you find out about men, Sylvie. They like to start but they like getting back a whole lot more."

Sylvia said doubtfully, "It doesn't sound like Chip would—"

"Maybe he wouldn't. I'm the last person in the world to try to give folks advice, Sylvie. Nobody wants it and I guess everyone has to sew his own seam anyway. But Mr. Hackett says they're shutting down for a week for the millwright's gang, and if Chip was to spend that week in a car bouncing along from one place to another, without even a chance to catch his breath—"

Well, a boy's will is the wind's will, and the wind can change in a minute."

"But what if he wouldn't want to go?"

"Mm. You tell him you want a little vacation before you move to Canton. If he thinks you've given in about that he'll take you. You try it and see."

They were gone six days. Each day Sylvia had them up and driving at daylight and she kept on the job, circuiting the sights at the next stop until late at night. She called upon Chip to stop often at roadside stands where she purchased carved ornaments and bumpy pottery.

She plied him with hot dogs, soft drinks and bad coffee. She was surprised and delighted at the glazed look that appeared in his eyes on the third day.

Mrs. Hackett came over the day after they returned. She said, "Well!" and paused expectantly, holding the cup of sugar in both hands.

"He went back to work today," Sylvia said. There was a listless note in her voice. "He hasn't said anything about going to Canton for days."

"Mm! And what did he say when he got home?" She pursed her lips. "That he never thought it would look so good to him?"

Sylvia nodded. She sat down on a kitchen chair and swung one foot and watched it pensively. "Just exactly," she said.

"You won't even be able to get him to stir out of the house to a picture show for a month. I told you. Wind's will, that's the poem. They're all alike." She put the cup of sugar on the kitchen cabinet and looked at Sylvia and frowned. "But I wouldn't say you look so happy about it, Sylvie. But you're tired."

Sylvia stopped swinging her foot and rested her chin on her hands. She sighed and said, "Only of this town, I guess. I was just thinking, when we came back yesterday, and it looked so... so old and so shabby and dull and tiresome... and I thought that we'll spend all our lives here."

Mrs. Hackett drew back and regarded her and then said again defensively, "You're just tired, Sylvie."

Sylvia looked up and her eyes were sparkling. "But I'm not," she said. "I had a wonderful time."

LET'S TALK ABOUT YOU Charles B. Smith

WAS THIS THE MOST CHARMING WOMAN?

You can pick up almost any woman's magazine and read an article about the most charming woman that ever lived. One writer will select a movie actress like Ingrid Bergman. Another writer will point to the fact that the Duchess of Windsor is the most charming, magnetic woman. Imaginative writers go all the way back to Cleopatra in making their nominations.

It seems to me, however, that everything considered, the most charming woman who ever lived was not a movie actress, an Egyptian queen, or the heroine of a popular novel. She was instead a mild, middle-aged woman who lived in Paris around the middle of the Nineteenth century.

Her name was Madame Recamier, and although she left behind nothing but an exquisite legend "as of a rose that had bloomed for a while in a garden and vanished," men and women still praise her.

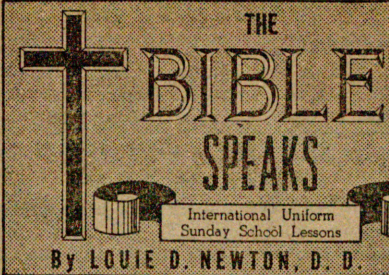

The secret of Madame Recamier's charm was that she put herself always in the other person's place. "She was an enchanting listener," one of her admirers said. She was. She rarely spoke herself. But she did something far more important—she contrived to make you say bright and witty things.

She had tremendous tact. When you called at her home, she smiled graciously, made you feel more welcome than you'd ever felt anywhere before. She wasn't flowery or extravagant about it. It was the way she said what she said rather than the words she used.

One of her friends, the great French author Sainte-Beuve, wrote on the day after her death, "She would have liked to stop everything at April—her heart remained at early Spring."

What did she offer these persons that they loved her so? Not wealth. Hers was lost. Not position. She lived in a four-room flat. Then what? The sheer charm and power of a perfect personality.

Jeanne Francoise Recamier was her full name. She lived in Paris from 1777 to 1849. To this day when writers want to set up a standard of charm and personality, they choose her as their model.

SCRIPTURE: Isaiah 53:4-6; Matthew 1:21; 5:17; 20:28-29; Luke 19:1-10; Hebrews 4:15, 16.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Isaiah 53:1-12.

His Work of Salvation

Lesson for February 1, 1948

PROFESSOR WILLIAM JAMES was once asked to give a definition of Christianity. He replied, "I doubt if there is a satisfactory definition of Christianity, but I can give you an example of it—Dr. Phillips Brooks."

Our lesson for Sunday tells us many things about Jesus, his work of salvation chiefly. But before we can understand what he does, we must look again at who he was and is. We begin with Isaiah 53:1-12. Who can read those majestic words without tears? And then we come to Matthew 1:21, "And thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins." Then go on to read Matthew 5:17-28, Luke 19:1-10, and Hebrews 4:15, 16.

The key verse, it seems to me, in Sunday's lesson is Luke 19:10, "The Son of man came to seek and to save that which was lost." Hold to this key, and every door will open in this lesson.

JESUS HELPS ZACCHAEUS

IN THE first ten verses of the 19th chapter of Luke we have the fascinating story of Jesus calling Zacchaeus down from the tree, forgiving his sins, and entering into his house. The disciples complained that Jesus had gone to lunch with a man that was a sinner. It was then that the Master declared, "The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."

Zacchaeus is but an illustration of what Jesus seeks to do for every man. He has not come to save a few, but "whosoever will." He will not force himself upon any man, but he waits in hope of saving every man.

The "worst" boy in your community may be saved—will be saved—if only he will do as Zacchaeus did, come to Jesus, just as he is, confessing his sin and believing on the Lord Jesus Christ.

HOW JESUS CHANGES PEOPLE

JESUS saved Zacchaeus by forgiving his sins and putting a new attitude in his heart. He had harmed many people, or at least they thought he had. They would not forgive him.

He may not have asked them to forgive him, but when he met Jesus and was changed by the redeeming grace of the Saviour, he proposed to restore fourfold wherever he may have wronged anyone. More than that, Zacchaeus offered to give the half of his goods to the poor. He gave convincing evidence that he was a changed man. So will every man who believes in Jesus.

But we must remember this, Zacchaeus bared his soul to the Saviour in repentance of his sins and believed on him as the Son of God before he manifested a changed attitude.

THE PURPOSE OF JESUS

RECALL again the words of the angel to Joseph, "Thou shalt call his name Jesus, for he shall save his people from their sins." It was to save sinners like Zacchaeus that Jesus came down from heaven and died on the cross. That was and is his purpose.

"He went about doing good, for God was with him," Acts 10:38.

We shall never understand the work of Jesus until we come to see him at work in every age and amongst all mankind to do the will of the Father in saving any and all who will come unto him in faith believing.

"SO SEND I YOU"

JESUS calls upon you and upon me and upon every follower of his to accept as the central purpose of our lives this mission of winning lost souls unto him. "As the Father hath sent me, so send I you."

I sat in a boat with two prominent business men, fishing in a private lake one afternoon last November. Mr. Asa G. Candler of Atlanta and I were guests of Mr. Carr P. Collins of Dallas. We were at his Wild Briar farm, a few miles from Dallas. We were talking about the plight of the world. Mr. Collins said: "What is money worth if we think of it apart from the purpose of God? Until we come back to the words of Jesus, 'So send I you,' we cannot hope to improve the sorrowful plight of our frightened day and generation. All men are lost until they come to know him as Saviour."

Let this testimony of one of God's gentlemen be heard and heeded by laymen and preachers alike, and fear will give way to faith, and the kingdoms of this earth will become the kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

Lures for Walleyes

Because walleyed pike are deep feeders and like minnows, streamers are effective artificial lures. But the fly rod should be of the bass weight. A stout leader is recommended.

Eyes Not Movable

Birds cannot move their eyes like human beings to look at objects but must turn the head. This is why birds have such flexible necks for twisting the head around in every direction.

By using the principle of the submarine detector, which proved effective in breaking the electrical attraction between dirt particles and fabrics, clothes in the future may be laundered by sound waves.

Believe It or Not!

Released, by permission of Robert Ripley for reprinting for educational purposes.

This great Ripley cartoon shows the pitiful plight of the common man, as divested of all rights and property, under that vicious form of organized larceny which is Communism. Therein a cruelly disciplined minute minority is forced to enslave the energies of the greater mass of productive people. There government, so-called, owns everything. But government cannot invent—cannot create. It can only consume. To invent is solely the function of the individual. With the people's incentives suppressed—and with ruling gangsters satiated with loot—there can be no mounting surge of invention, as has made and kept America great and her people free. "Working from behind her iron curtain," says National Patent Council, "Russia strives to reduce to her level the unshackled peoples of the world, first by destroying their national obstructions to commercial piracy. Through misguided Americans, she labors now to break down our Patent Laws, our Trade-Mark Laws, our Fair-Trade Laws—and all our great network of protective laws which provide, for our people, a compelling incentive to create and produce—to make and keep our nation strong. Patents make jobs. Patents propel America."

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Are You "Hobby Happy?"

Funny thing about hobbies... When Ed Carey started making a model of the "Flying Cloud," it was only to rest his eyes from reading. But now he spends every spare moment ship modelling!

Some wives might have resented a husband suddenly shutting himself in the attic every night. But not Ed's Prudence. When she found him working late, she brought him up some beer and crackers... showed a real interest in his hobby... until finally Ed had her helping with the rigging.

Wasn't long before they were working side by side on Ed's bench, sharing a common interest. Instead of keeping them apart, Ed's hobby brought them more together.

From where I sit, a husband's hobby can often be a wife's as well. In fact, I've got the missus interested in tying trout flies—and, along with that mellow glass of beer, it makes the evenings go by mighty pleasantly.

Saturday night, January 17, Mrs. Clarence Heisner had her party. Mrs. Elmer Seivert scored high.

Sunday evening, January 18, two tables were played in the home of Mrs. Lester Heisner, when Ernest Knutson made high score.

When the final scores were counted, Mrs. Gilbert Schumil and Frank Fleck had the highest scores and won the prizes.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Eisenbrandt entertained a group of people at dinner recently. Guests included Henry Eisenbrandt of Frankfort, Christ of Chicago, brothers of Mr. Eisenbrandt, and Mrs. Charles Eisenbrandt and son Russel, and Mrs. Ann Warns, also of Chicago. It was Russel's birthday, so they made it a birthday party.

The pupils of Mrs. Tolf's room had their annual seed party last Friday. It has been a custom that the side that sells the least had to treat the winners, but this year there was no loser, so they all donated toward the treat and had a good time eating and playing games.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bixler spent Friday in Chicago visiting their daughter, Rosine, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Lühring returned Friday from Renville, Minn., where they were called two weeks ago when her father was reported very ill. He died a few days after their arrival.

Herman Weichbrodt and daughter Bonnie spent Saturday in Chicago where Bonnie receives monthly treatment for a hip ailment.

Mrs. Irene Haass had the misfortune of falling in her home last Sunday morning, while she was dressing. She was found lying on the floor by her nephew, Chester Pfaff, in agony. They called the doctor. The following day she was taken to Silver Cross, where x-rays were taken showing a fractured hip bone.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mark were both on the sick list the past week. They have recovered sufficiently to be out. The teachers and pupils of Ann Rutledge school are planning a valentine party to be given February 14; full particulars will be announced later.

Mrs. Walker is ill at the home of her son, the George Walkers, at Lincoln Estates.

Quite a number of Lincoln Estates folk attended the wedding of Robert Alexander and Miss Shirley Neidringhaus, which took place in St. Joachim's church, Chicago, January 17. Miss Helen Alexander was maid of honor and Walter Neidringhaus served as best man. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Helga Zaumbahlen, Mrs. Walter Neidringhaus, and Mrs. Roy Womack, Edward Alexander, Roy Womack, and Charles Zahn acted as ushers. After the ceremony a reception was given in Liberty hall to a large number of guests. Mr. and Mrs. Alexander will make their home in Lincoln Estates. They will live with the bride's parents.

Janice Johnson was a lucky girl when her mother remembered her with two birthday parties last week. Sunday evening she invited her schoolmates, and on Tuesday, the day of her birthday, their entire family entertained. She received many gifts.

SLEEP IN WARM COMFORT WITH AN ELECTRIC BLANKET

Wouldn't it be fun to double-cross the weather on cold winter nights? You'd sleep right through without getting up to hunt for extra blankets or waking to pull one from the foot of the bed. With an electric blanket or comforter you can blissfully ignore the thermometer... open the windows wide and slip into a bed already warm.

Even mounds and mounds of ordinary blankets only insulate from the cold... but an electric blanket or comforter produces just the right amount of warmth no matter how the temperature shifts. You set the automatic control only once a season—from then on the electric blanket adjusts automatically to changing room temperatures.

You'll wake refreshed and relaxed. The weight of layers of covers is tiring... one electric blanket or comforter gives you warmth without weight. "Cold spots" are banished, too—your bed is sunny warm all over.

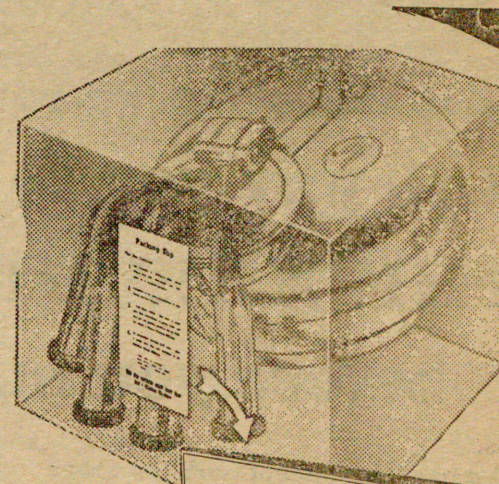

Lovely electric blankets and comforters launder and clean as beautifully as ordinary blankets or comforters. The only difference lies in having only one per bed to launder and store for the summer months—not three or four.

You've been promising yourself a really good night's sleep for a long time... do something about it today. For the details of real sleeping comfort...

General Electric Automatic Blanket—Choice of rose, blue, green and cedar. 72" x 86" big enough for a double bed.

Westinghouse Electric Comforter—Choice of rose, blue and green quilted satin comforter with non-slip back, removable warming sheet.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Troop 42

Twelve girls were promoted to senior scouts and 11 girls became intermediate scouts at investiture ceremonies January 11. One girl transferred here from Indiana, joining the intermediate group. This gives troop 42 a group of 24 girls. The two groups were divided into patrols at the last meeting. The senior officers are patrol leader, Dorothy Ann Rauch; assistant patrol leader, Audrey Neithammer; scribe, Joyce Cummons; treasurer, Betty Beagley.

The senior girl scout patrol is working on a project with other girl scouts in the United States to make clothing kits to send overseas. Each kit will contain one complete outfit for a child. These clothing kits will be shipped and distributed abroad by the American Friends Service Committee. This committee will work with the Girl Scouts of America and Girl Guides in other countries. The girls ask: "Won't you go through your trunks, sort out the things you don't need, and let us know? We need clothing for children ranging from one to 14 years. Please call Mrs. Fred Rauch and senior scouts will be glad to pick up the clothing."

The intermediate girl scouts in troop 42 are working as a group on their hostess badges. The girls are planning a dinner in the Rueckert basement in connection with earning the badge. A definite date has not been set. Mrs. Rueckert is a member of the troop committee.

The intermediate patrol officers of troop 42 are: Patrol leader, Helen Rueckert; assistant patrol leader, Doris Cummons; scribe, Jeanne Boleman; treasurer, Beatrice Benson.

The next meeting will be February 12, at 7:30 p. m., at the school.

Troop 41

Girl Scout Troop 41 meets every Tuesday after school in the school gym. Our officers are LaVerne Sands, president; Donna Schenkel, secretary; and Barbara Geuther, treasurer.

The girls are now working on their hostess badges. At the meeting last Tuesday a discussion was held on what makes a good hostess. Several of the girls acted out a skit. The girls handed in letters which they had written to persons who had entertained them. Refreshments were served by Patricia Perley and Mary Cooney.

Brownies

The Brownie troop had their regular meeting Wednesday, January 21. Two more girls were invested, making an enrollment of 20 girls. This meeting started a project on dramatics and the girls all joined in on an original dramatization of some story.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday, February 4.

Leaders

The Girl Scout leaders and Brownie leaders met at the school January 20 with their neighborhood chairman, Mrs. Albert Cappel, to discuss plans for the Girl Scout movement in Mokena. Each leader gave a brief account as to what their troop planned to achieve during the year.

Hormones Restore Breeding Ability to Sterile Cattle

Cows that seem to be "unable to get with calf" and bulls that are not doing their part to increase the size of the herd are getting a thorough scientific going-over these days. The object is to restore their reproductive capacity.

And it's all being done with needles—needles that hold powerful shots of hormones. Best results are obtained only when the trouble is recognized early and treatment is started promptly.

In extended field experiments just reported by veterinary endocrinologists, hope was held forth that as high as 80 per cent of the difficult breeders in some herds may be helped by injections of gonadotropic hormones.

Hard-to-settle cows, cows with cystic ovarian degeneration, and impotent bulls responded in 60 to 80 per cent of the cases treated, the investigators reported. In handling hard-to-settle cows, much of the success depended upon administering the hormone at "exactly the right time," it was stated. In some cases, one injection was all that was required, where as in stubborn cases, injections had to be given twice a week for as long as six weeks.

While hormone treatment is not the answer to all types of bovine sterility and cannot be expected to work miracles, the investigators declared, it is one of the best means available to treat reproductive troubles. They cautioned, however, that hormones will not benefit sterility caused by infectious diseases or by hereditary defects and that improper use of these products can cause "fantastically freak results."

EXTINGUISHER DANGER TOLD

Dr. Charles K. Kincaid, Will county health officer, has issued the following warning concerning the use of fire extinguishers:

"Three children were killed recently in a trailer fire by poison gas originating from a fire extinguisher containing carbon tetrachloride. The extinguisher was of the glass-bomb type, with automatic, spring-operated release, as manufactured by a Philadelphia concern. The division of industrial hygiene of the Illinois department of public health determined that when carbon tetrachloride comes in contact with a fire or high temperatures it decomposes and forms phosgene, which is a highly poisonous gas. The automatic extinguisher releases carbon tetrachloride, which splashes on the floor, evaporates, and then comes in contact either with the flames or the stove. In this manner enough phosgene is formed to cause death.

"I recommend and urge that you discard extinguishers of this type, if you are using them now. However, if you have extinguishers containing carbon tetrachloride which are not automatic, such as glass bombs thrown by hand upon the fire, or hand-operated pumps, do not discard them. The latter should be used with care, making sure that all personnel has been cleared out of the room in which the fire is located and allowing no one to reenter until the room has been thoroughly ventilated.

"If you have any questions regarding your fire extinguishers, please contact the Will county health department at 21 East Van Buren street, Joliet, phone 6295."

After-Dark Hours Bring Accidents

More than two-thirds of all traffic fatalities occur after dark during the winter season of shortened daylight hours, Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, reported today.

Although the increased flow of traffic during the extended period of darkness is an important factor, Chicago Motor club tests administered to students of driver training in high schools also disclose that many drivers with good daylight vision have defective night vision, the motor club executive said.

Guns Replaced by Syringes in Mexican Cattle Disease War

A recent abrupt change in the joint United States-Mexican war on foot and mouth disease, involving an about-face on the "no vaccination" policy previously adhered to, is the cause of grave concern in livestock circles this side of the border, American Veterinary medical association.

Government authorities have announced that under a new operating policy instituted in the Mexican cattle disease campaign, animals in foot and mouth disease infection areas will be quarantined and vaccinated. Slaughter of infected animals will be resorted to only "when necessary." Previously, all infected and exposed cattle in the quarantine areas were slaughtered because vaccination was not regarded as a dependable means of combating the disease.

From Chicago, reliably informed veterinary authorities reported that pressure to abandon large-scale slaughter of animals came from Mexican interests as early as last July. The complaint was that the slaughter program was proving a crippling impact on Mexico's economic and social structure.

These authorities said, however, that the actual decision to reverse the campaign policy "came as a sharp surprise to the American veterinary profession and to the livestock industry because former experiences with foot and mouth disease vaccination have not warranted trust in this practice."

Why Plans Were Reversed

Also from Chicago, the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical association, official organ of the veterinary profession in North America, offered a partial explanation for the turn-about in plans.

"Resistance to the eradication campaign," this publication explained, "increased so much and became so bitter that a Mexican veterinarian and a seven-soldier escort were murdered, and several sanitary squads were threatened with violence. Finally, late in November, the situation became so acute that a reversal in eradication procedure was necessary."

Root of the violence, the Journal suggested, lay in the fact that Mexican owners could see no end to the slaughtering of their cattle and oxen. Apparently, many owners had thought the campaign would work miracles and could be completed with a minimum sacrifice of animals.

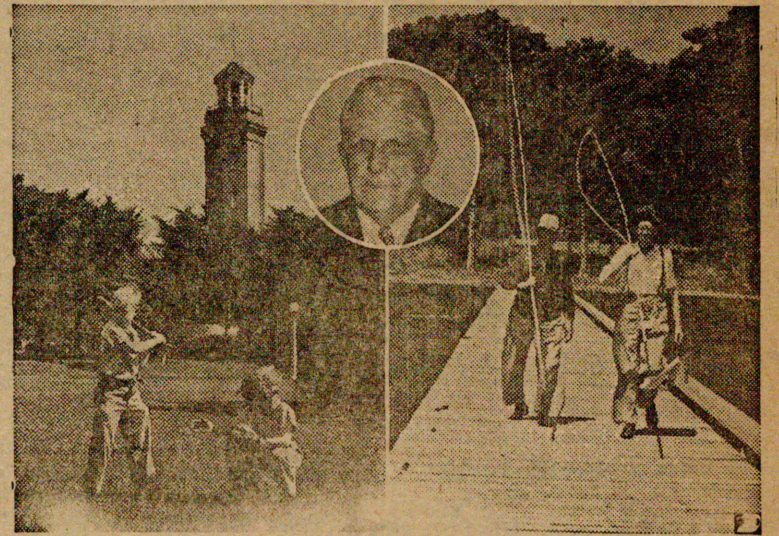

It is currently estimated that it will take at least ten years to purge the infection area in Mexico. Less optimistic estimates hold that North American livestock producers will have to "live with foot and mouth disease for decades to come." Meanwhile, as long as one infected animal remains in Mexico, there always will be danger that the infection will get a foothold in United States herds, according to the Journal.

HAPPY CHILDREN AT MOOSEHEART, ILL.

HAPPY OLD FOLKS AT MOOSEHAVEN, FLA.

James J. Davis, 74, former U. S. Secretary of Labor and former U. S. Senator from Pennsylvania, died Nov. 22d in Washington, but two outstanding American communities live on as monuments to his memory. They are Mooseheart, Ill., famed City of Happy Childhood for youngsters who have lost one or both parents; and Moosehaven, Fla., City of Contentment for dependent old folks. Both were founded (Mooseheart in 1913 and Moosehaven in 1922) by Mr. Davis, who from 1906 until his death was Director General of the Loyal Order of Moose, a fraternity dedicated to human betterment, and with a membership of 800,000 men throughout the United States and Canada. Nearly 1,000 children receive care and a liberal education—plus a trade—at Mooseheart, a 1,200-acre community located 35 miles west of Chicago. Three hundred old folks dwell at Moosehaven, part of Orange Park, Fla., on the banks of the St. John's river, 14 miles south of Jacksonville. The Loyal Order of Moose maintains both communities. Mooseheart children are sons and daughters of members of the Moose. Moosehaven residents are Moose members, wives of members or widows of members.

FROM FARM TO FOREST . . . Churches are playing an important role in the concerted effort to improve rural living. Typical are these scenes, taken at the Alpine, Tenn., mission of the Presbyterian church, which operates a forest of 1,500 acres and a farm of 100 acres. The dairy herd (left) in front of the modern barn shows the strides made in better agriculture while the sawmill (right) helps make the forest a paying proposition.

Long on the road to decline, the country church is being revived as an integral force for re-energizing small rural communities. Acting on the principle that where the community thrives, the church also thrives, all denominations are backing a widespread campaign to revitalize the country church.

Without in any sense departing from the Christian aims of saving souls and preaching redemption, the churches simply are adding an awareness of social and economic responsibility to their mission of salvation. The concerns of the entire community — home, family, farming, health — become the concerns of the community church.

Particularly valuable and instructive as models or demonstrations for study are the community plans being carried out by missions of the Presbyterian and Methodist churches in the mountains of Kentucky and Tennessee. The Presbyterian projects are at Morris Fork and Wooton, Ky., and at Alpine and Big Lick, Tenn. The Methodists have community missions at Frakes, Ky., and Sevierville, Tenn. A larger community project at Blue Springs, Tenn., represents the combined parishes of the Methodists, Disciples of Christ and Presbyterians.

byterian projects are at Morris Fork and Wooton, Ky., and at Alpine and Big Lick, Tenn. The Methodists have community missions at Frakes, Ky., and Sevierville, Tenn. A larger community project at Blue Springs, Tenn., represents the combined parishes of the Methodists, Disciples of Christ and Presbyterians.

Diverse Projects.

All have much in common, but in some things each is unique. Blue Springs is the oldest mission, and its area is the largest—some 400 miles square. It has seven churches and four preaching points at neighborhood centers, a cooperative store, an energetic training program in public health and a continuing series of adult education classes in current problems, such as farm machinery repair, soil conservation and home decorations.

All this represents the life work of a great country preacher. He was Paul A. Doran, who went to Blue Springs in 1917 as a divinity school graduate, and died there three years ago after 28 years spent entirely in that community's service.

One of his many lasting services was his homestead plan. He made home buying his personal concern. Through small loans from a nominal sum held in trust by him, the minister made it possible for 20 families in his community to become owners of their own farms.

The pastor at Big Lick is both ardent and articulate in behalf of better rural living. He has known country life from childhood and he knows how to farm. He can run a tractor, plow a contour furrow and help in the saw mill. He has organized a Big Lick homestead project to aid young men get established on the land, and 27 families have been assisted in buying farms since 1940. This pastor is Eugene Smathers, who has written and preached ably about rural economic problems, and who has supplied the leadership which has made Big Lick a better place to live and work.

COMMUNITY ENTERPRISE

. . . One of the leading churches in promoting community development is Calvary Presbyterian church (above) at Big Lick, Tenn. The church was built by people of the community, which consists of only about 50 families. Landscaping was done by the pastor and farmers.

Promote Health.

One of Big Lick's finest public services is its community health clinic. There is a building specially constructed for it, in a grove adjoining the church yard. A graduate nurse is stationed there to aid in guarding the health of the people and to assist in emergencies.

Big Lick also has a soil conservation program, and is carrying on adult education and demonstrations in fertilizing, crop rotation, better livestock breeding, introduction of new fruits and plants, and good forestry management. Homemaking and home decoration, health and child care are studied by the women. There is also a study of the cooperative movement, and committees are developing plans for future cooperative undertakings, possibly in marketing of home crops, processing and a credit union. Big Lick has its own machinery pool, including a tractor, a hammer mill and a saw mill.

Build Own Church.

Wooton community, under the ministry of Benton Deaton, has a fine community church and playground, built by the people themselves. In the recreation center the children of the neighborhood have a place to enjoy their games and the whole community has its picnics and outdoor religious gatherings.

Wooton owns a cooperative truck, which provides transportation for the farmers who want to send things to market, and have things bought for them in town. Very few of the people have cars, and their usual means of travel is by mule back.

Wooton also has a circulating library, the beginnings of a demonstration farm, and a training course in handicrafts and cottage industries, for both men and women.

Similar work, especially in health, soil saving and better farming, is going on at Alpine, Morris Fork, Frakes and Sevierville. The programs vary according to local needs and the resources that can be put to use.

Productive Enterprises.

For example, the parish at Alpine is the owner of a forest of 1,500 acres and a farm of 100 acres. A trained forester and an expert farmer make those enterprises produce earnings, and furnish examples for other farm and woodlot owners. The Alpine program is in charge of the head of the mission, the Rev. Bernard M. Taylor, and Mr. Taylor has made the mission responsible for developing the community's full resources through the activities of the citizens themselves, and their labors are being reflected more and more in better health and living.

The same can be said of the communities at Frakes, Morris Fork and Sevierville, all of which have vastly improved their ways of living because practical economic plans for conserving the land and finding more useful employment for surplus labor have been made principal aims in the community plan. The pastors, of course, have not neglected their religious duties. They simply have added economic concerns to their other responsibilities.

The next article will tell of the important community development plan now being carried on in five counties centering around Tupelo, Miss. The Tupelo plan is one of the most ambitious that has been undertaken anywhere in the unfolding rural life movement.

Blind Girl Becomes Expert Knitter

LE SUEUR, MINN.—Despite the handicap of being nearly blind, 21-year-old Elaine Heintz can knit as fine a sweater, scarf, or mitten set as any seen in exclusive shops. Her needles click with the speed of a professional craftsman.

Miss Heintz, whose vision failed when she was stricken with spinal meningitis at the age of 5, has made a modest start at setting herself up in business.

With the help of her sister Katherine, she began looking for markets for her work at Christmas time. The search was unexpectedly successful, and she sold 200 of her knitted pieces to Le Sueur residents. Her specialty is colorful potholders.

Miss Heintz acquired her knitting skill at the Minnesota Braille and Sight-Saving school in Faribault, attending her first classes when she was only seven years old.

Veterans'
SERVICE BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper regularly.

Vet Lobbies Active

There are 21 veterans' and military organizations listed in Washington as maintaining lobbies for the advancement or protection of veterans and military affairs. Of these 21 organizations, 13 are strictly veterans' organizations, such as the American Legion, Amvets, Veterans of Foreign Wars and others.

These veterans' and military organizations are spending at the rate of approximately $112,950 for salaries alone in their Washington offices, according to listings under the congressional reorganization act which requires registration of all lobbyists. Counting office rent and expenses, entertainment and other incidental expenses, it is safe to say that the veterans' organizations are spending approximately $300,000 annually for the job they are doing here in Washington to advance or kill legislation before congress.

Salaries range from the $1,200 annual pay of L. S. Ray, representing the Disabled Emergency Officers of the World Wars, to $10,000 for John Thomas Taylor of the American Legion. Some are serving at no salary, such as Charles Henry Fleming of the Coast Guard league while others serve for actual expenses, such as Mrs. G. S. Westfall representing the Bataan Veterans' organization.

Questions and Answers

Q. Would it be possible to get a complete roster of names and addresses of my former outfit? There are about 130 men and officers. I have about 80 names and would like to complete the roster for a reunion of the 281st Signal Pigeon company while stationed at Fort Jackson, Columbia, S. C. Would appreciate anything you can do. N. W., Joliet, Ill.

A. The office of the adjutant general is not disposed to furnish lists or rosters or military units to other than historical or military organizations or associations. They have a rule against giving out these lists to individuals. For this reason it is difficult for this column to help you. The 281st Signal Pigeon company was activated at Fort Meade, Md., in June, 1942, and moved to Fort Jackson in August, 1943, and was demobilized there in August, 1944. Our only suggestion is that you might write to either the C. O. at Fort Meade or Fort Jackson giving the dates and ask if they have a roster on file.

Q. I was a nurse in World War I. Since then I have married. My husband is not a veteran but he took up a homestead in 1913. I would like to know if I am eligible to take up a homestead.—C. M. D., Hobson, Mont.

A. It is hard to answer your question without knowing more facts. The bureau of land management of the department of interior says that only heads of families are eligible to file for homesteads. If you have become the sole support of your husband, for instance, you might be eligible to file. Or if your husband has not taken out the maximum of 160 or 320 acres, he would be eligible to file for additional land. Would suggest that you either contact the land management office at Billings, or write direct to Fred Johnson, Director of the Bureau of Land Management, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C., and give him all details of your situation.

Q. Our son was killed in action. Since his death his wife has been drawing a pension. She recently has been remarried and we wonder if my husband and I can draw the pension she was getting since I understand her remarriage will stop the pension for her.—Mrs. A. J. K., Baton Rouge, La.

A. No, you will not get the pension drawn by your son's widow. However, if you are dependent parents you are entitled to a pension in your own right, both you and your husband, for the death of your son. Suggest that you immediately contact the nearest office of Veterans' administration and explain your situation to them.

Q. My husband died while serving in the Illinois militia. Am I entitled to a widow's pension?—Mrs. R. H., Chicago, Ill.

A. You are not entitled to a pension since your husband did not see active wartime service.

Q. I am a war widow with one child. My husband was killed in action in September, 1945. My boy was then six months old. He will be three years old in March, 1948. I recently remarried. I know that my pension stops the day I remarry. Will the allotment for my son stop also? I don't think it should, but would like to know for sure.—A. D. K., Freeport, Ill.

A. No. Your son's pension will not stop. It will continue until he is 18 years old or until he is 21 if he is in school at an approved educational institution.

AROUND THE HOUSE

That murky appearance that comes overnight on mirrors during warm weather can be wiped off with a cloth dampened with ammonia. Then rub dry with a clean cloth.

Use unbleached muslin of heavy quality for pressing cloths. Edges may be left unfinished if desired. To be sure the cloth is lint free, boil the muslin cloth and rinse thoroughly.

Mix whitening and a little lemon juice into a clear paste. Use this as a cleaner for ivory or bone cutlery and you'll be amazed with the results. Leave the mixture on a few moments, then rinse, and polish.

When wash cloths become old and faded, fold them over and cover with a casing of cretonne. Now you have a serviceable potholder.

If there's no room in the hem of your skirt for lengthening, try adding a width of ribbon around the waistline. Use a contrasting ribbon. Some of the newer dresses have contrasting waist interest, so you'll be right in style.

To sew a smooth bias seam, baste a piece of paper between the two edges.

Women Squelch Gripers;
Put 'Em on Committees

Gripping doesn't go in Noel, Mo., and it's a women's organization—of all things—that's putting a stop to it.

"Every time someone growls about a situation," its leader says, "we put them on a committee to straighten it out." "Straightening it out" so far has meant turning the city dump into a public park, providing equipment for city tennis courts, instituting a sanitation and clean-up program, and installing several public drinking fountains.

Aluminum paint makes an excellent sealer. It will seal in most of the stains and chemicals. Finish later with two coats of good oil paint.

Buy your clothes to fit the largest part of your figure. It is much easier to take in a dress than it is to let out the seams.

Enterprising Lad Uses Horse Car in Business

The 1859 horse car at Baltimore's sesquicentennial exposition is back in business. Hearing the bell clanging and children clambering aboard, officials investigated. Grass Waterway Is Good "Stop Loss" Measure.

'stop-loss' steps as contour cultivation, strip cropping, terracing and building dams where necessary. "These are key steps in soil-saving. "But you need plenty of 'input,' too. "That means organic matter from manure, green manure crops, deep-rooted legumes in the rotation and crop residues. It means the use of mixed fertilizers containing nitrogen, phosphorus and potash as needed, to boost crop yields and the tonnage of organic matter returned to the soil. "Among the 'input' steps, the growing of deep-rooted legumes is especially important. The tap-roots of well-fed legumes will push organic matter deep into the soil and improve the tilth in the top 18- to 25-inch soil layer. The legumes will open up tightly-packed soil and admit oxygen down under. By improving tilth and building organic matter, they will make the soil a better water reservoir for "hirs crops."

Winter Storage of Plant Food to Aid '48 Spring Planting

CHICAGO — Farmers can have fertilizer "on hand" for their 1948 spring planting if they will order plant food early and store it on their farms this winter, declared the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee in a statement made public here. Fertilizers can be stored in good condition provided a few simple precautions are followed, the statement says. The committee lists these five rules for storing plant food: 1. Store the fertilizer only in the barn or some other dry building that has flooring off the ground. 2. Do not pile bags of fertilizer directly on earth or cement floors. 3. Stack the bags closely together. This will reduce the circulation of air from which the fertilizer absorbs moisture. 4. Do not stack the bags too high. The pressure of the bags on top will tend to cake the fertilizer on the bottom of the pile. 5. Keep broken bags separate from the main pile. Loose fertilizer is likely to absorb moisture.

Rebuild Soil Now While Income Is High, Farmers Told

CHICAGO—Now is the time to build up the soil, while dollars are cheap and farm income is high, according to a statement issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee. "Dollars invested in soil replenishing practices such as commercial fertilizers," says the statement, "have greater purchasing power than if they are spent for building or other commodities. "Prices of mixed fertilizers are 20 per cent below what they might otherwise be, had they increased in proportion to the prices of numerous other commodities analyzed in a study by Iowa State College agricultural economists based on U. S. Department of Commerce figures."

It was not until after April 22, 1889, that any individual was permitted to claim or own land in what is now the state of Oklahoma.

According to Federal statistics more than sixty per cent of America's farmers have automobiles and live on hard surface roads.

the food goes down the river, it is taken as a matter of course. With this simple analogy, Lee M. Gentry, Illinois PMA chairman, calls attention to what soil losses mean to the public.

News of a carload of potatoes going bad or several hundred cases of eggs spoiling makes the headlines, the chairman points out. But, when potential production goes under the bridge in the way of eroded soil, it is viewed as just so much muddy water.

"If, in the flood-swollen river, we could see barrels of flour, cases of eggs, truck loads of canned vegetables and fruits, and carloads of potatoes, beans, corn, milk, beef, butter, apples, and strawberries instead of so much muddy water, more people would understand what is taking place in this country," the chairman explains. "Experts estimate that when the Pilgrim fathers landed in this country we had Now there are only six inches. It is startling to estimate the amount of an average of nine inches of topsoil. food this lost three inches of topsoil represents. More startling is the thought of what will happen if, with population increasing, we lose another three inches of topsoil.

"To check soil losses and insure continued production, is the reason for the agricultural conservation program. The program for 1948 will soon be announced in each county. Every farm producer is not only eligible, but is definitely urged to participate."

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT TAXES?

(The Semmler Newspapers this week begin a series of articles prepared by the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois, located at 602 East Capitol avenue, Springfield, in which taxing is "explained." These articles will be published in the public interest, but it is to be distinctly understood that The Semmler Newspapers are not presenting these articles as necessarily representing the newspapers' views.)

Springfield—Everybody pays taxes, but all that most Illinois property owners know about the tax bills they receive each year is that it is too high. The story behind the tax bill, stripped of all legalistic hocus-pocus by the Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois, outlines not only the steps that determine the amount of the tax bill, but also the ways in which property owners can protect themselves against paying more than their just share.

This is the first in a series of short articles of the story behind your tax bill. It is suggested that you clip out these articles until you have the complete story.

Within a few months, everyone owning property in Illinois will receive his local tax bill on that property for the year 1947.

The amount of that tax bill will be determined by two factors: the value of the property and the amount of tax money the local governments are going to spend.

In determining the value of your property, the first step is valuation by the local assessor. Personal property is valued each year by the assessor as of April 1. In other words, it is the amount of corn in the crib, livestock on the farm, money in the bank, on the particular date of April 1 that is subject to assessment and taxation.

Real estate is valued once every four years, at what is known as the quadrennial assessment. According to law, the assessor in every "quadrennial year" is supposed personally to examine and assess every piece of land and the improvements thereon. 1947 was the quadrennial year in all of the township organized counties. 1946 was the quadrennial year in the 17 commission counties. In the three years between each quadrennial assessment, the assessor is responsible for adding the valuation of new construction or improvements, and for taking off value where property has been destroyed through fire or other cause.

After the assessor has completed his assessments, and has determined a value on each piece of real estate and personal property, the assessments are supposed to be published so each property owner can compare the assessment of his property with the assessments of other similar properties to determine whether he has been fairly assessed.

If any property owner feels that he has been unfairly assessed, he has the right to a hearing before the board of review, and the board of review has the power to revise the assessment of any individual piece of property if the property owner can establish that his assessment was unfair.

It has been the law for many years that the assessors shall assess at the full, fair cash value of the property. In practice, however, assessments by local assessors have always been at less than full value, and the fraction of full value at which property has been assessed has varied from township to township and from county to county.

This lack of uniformity of assessment between townships within a county still results in a very unfair distribution of the tax burden in the case of local governments whose territory includes more than one township. For example, if a property actually worth $10,000 is assessed at $5,000 in one township, and a property actually worth $10,000 is assessed at $2,500 in another township, and both properties are in the same school district, then the property assessed at $5,000 will pay twice as much school tax as the property assessed at $2,500, although the properties are in fact of equal value.

The county boards of review have the power to correct this inequality of assessment by equalizing assessments between townships. In other words, in the illustration above, they could cut every assessment in the township where the $10,000 property was assessed at $5,000 in half, so that properties in that township would be on the same basis as in the other township where $10,000 properties were assessed at $2,500. They can do this without notice to the property owners.

The next article will explain how assessed values are raised to so-called 100 per cent values.

3 Unions Block Labor Peace—Refuse Wage Boost Already Accepted by 19 Other Railroad Unions!

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and the Switchmen's Union of North America, representing 125,000 railroad employees, have refused to accept the offer of the Railroads of a wage increase of 15 1/2 cents an hour.

This is the same increase awarded 1,000,000 non-operating employees by an arbitration board in September, 1947.

This is the same increase accepted by 175,000 conductors, trainmen and switchmen by agreement on November 14, 1947.

Agreements have been made with 1,175,000 employees, represented by nineteen unions. But these three unions, representing only 125,000 men, are trying to get more. They are demanding also many new working rules not embraced in the settlement with the conductors and trainmen.

Incidentally, the Switchmen's Union of North America represents only about 7% of all railroad switchmen, the other 93% being represented by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and covered by the settlement with that union.

Strike Threat

The leaders of these three unions spread a strike ballot while negotiations were still in progress. This is not a secret vote but is taken by union leaders and votes are signed by the employees in the presence of union representatives.

When direct negotiations failed, the leaders of these three unions refused to join the railroads in asking the National Mediation Board to attempt to settle the dispute, but the Board took jurisdiction at the request of the carriers and has been earnestly attempting since November 24, 1947, to bring about a settlement. The Board on January 15, 1948, announced its inability to reach a mediation settlement. The leaders of the unions rejected the request of the Mediation Board to arbitrate. The railroads accepted.

What Now?

The Unions having refused to arbitrate, the Railway Labor Act provides for the appointment of a fact-finding board by the President.

The railroads feel it is due shippers, passengers, employees, stockholders, and the general public to know that throughout these negotiations and in mediation, they have not only exerted every effort to reach a fair and reasonable settlement, but they have also met every requirement of the Railway Labor Act respecting the negotiation, mediation, and arbitration of labor disputes.

It seems unthinkable that these three unions, representing less than 10 per cent of railroad employees, and those among the highest paid, can successfully maintain the threat of a paralyzing strike against the interest of the entire country—and against 90 per cent of their fellow employees.

The threat of a strike cannot justify granting more favorable conditions to 125,000 employees than have already been put in effect for 1,175,000, nor will it alter the opposition of the railroads to unwarranted wage increases or to changes in working rules which are not justified.

A glance at the box shows what employees represented by the Engineers and Firemen make. They are among the highest paid in the ranks of labor in the United States, if not the highest.

Compare these wages with what you make!

Here is a comparison of average annual earnings of engineers and firemen for 1939 (pre-war) and 1947. Also shown is what 1947 earnings would have been if the 15 1/2 cents per hour increase, offered by the railroads and rejected by the union leaders, had been in effect throughout the entire year 1947.	Type of Employee	1939 Average Annual Earnings	1947 Average Annual Earnings	1947 Average Annual Earnings with 15 1/2 Cents per Hour Added
ENGINEERS	Road Freight (Local and Way)	$3,966	$6,126	$6,757

	Road Freight (Through)	3,147	4,684	5,169
